

Not a Very Lovely
Story Prohibitionists
Are Trying to Write

Very few newspapers have any use for a professional prohibitionist, and while their distrust may not be as outspoken as mine it's just as deep and permanent. A good reason for the newspapers' attitude appears when you examine the libel which the W. C. T. U. committed Wednesday in Washington in testifying for H. R. 1227, the Bryson bill which aims to prohibit interstate shipment of newspapers and periodicals containing liquor or beer advertising, and to forbid such advertising on radio and television.

The good lady who spoke up for the W. C. T. U. was its president, Mrs. Glenn G. Hays of Evanston, Ill. She told the House Commerce Committee hearing:

"The liquor industry is 'willfully using' advertising to break down standards in the home and create juvenile delinquency."

Her statement is a libel against the communications industry because while it is the liquor industry which places the advertising in the newspaper and magazine business which accepts and publishes it. To state that the effect is to break down moral standards and create juvenile delinquency is an absolute untruth — and no one but a fanatic would dream up such a charge.

Moral standards and the correct upbringing of children are matters determined by parents — not by law. The W. C. T. U. by its mulish insistence that "everything will be all right if you'll just pass a law" is contributing to moral decay, not curing it. That's always the result when you try to exempt the individual from personal responsibility and put the burden on a law. Because if a person won't assume personal responsibilities that are justly his he'll pay even less attention to a remote and impersonal statute.

This newspaper has never published liquor advertising, but it was a free and voluntary decision. If the W. C. T. U. is going to make it a matter of law then I propose that I and my fellow publishers go to great lengths to evade or break that law.

In this particular instance, however, the issue is unlikely to arise. H. R. 1227 while apparently drawn to prohibit only the interstate handling of liquor and beer advertising, actually would prohibit it entirely, because it is obvious that few if any newspapers and magazines could publish such advertising at all. A single copy crossing a state line would make the publication subject to prosecution.

This in itself seems to make H. R. 1227 an unconstitutional proposal. We tried federal prohibition with one amendment, and replaced it with another. The connection is made pretty obvious by the following paragraph from the Associated Press dispatch of May 19 from Washington previously reporting the words of the W. C. T. U. president. The dispatch closes with this summary:

"Sponsor of the House measure was the late Joseph Bryson (D., S. C.), who, until his death more than a year ago was a leading congressional advocate of prohibition. A similar bill, introduced by Senator Langer (R., N. D.), is scheduled for hearing next month before the Senate Commerce Committee."

Langer... what unsavory characters these prohibitionists do manage to tie up with...

Russian Asks Help in Saving His Family

By ROY CALVIN
WASHINGTON (UP) — A former Russian secret police agent made a dramatic appeal today to the American public for help in saving his pretty wife and young son whom he left in Moscow when he fled to the West.

Nikolai Khokhlov said the influence of his wife, Yanina, made him a religious man and was responsible for his decision to balk at a murder assignment his Kremlin masters gave him.

He appeared, under heavy guard, at an extraordinary public session of the Senate international security subcommittee.

Khokhlov had spent nearly two hours testifying about the inner working of the secret police (MVD) when Counsel Charles P. Grimes invited him to say something about Yanina, an Orthodox Catholic, and their 2-year-old son, Aleksander.

He left them behind in Moscow when he went to West Berlin on the murder assignment. He had already decided, in talks with Yanina, to warn the intended anti-Communist victim and then to flee to the West.

French Battling to Hold Three Menaced Points

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indochina (AP) — Three little defense posts in the southeastern sector of the vital Red River Delta battled fiercely today to hold off, enrolling Vietnamese forces as the defenders of Dien Bien Phu tried to do.

French Union aircraft parachuted ammunition, guns, and food to Vietnamese defenders with French noncommissioned officers in the posts of Yen Phu, Anxa, and Coquan.

They have been under constant heavy mortar attack and machine-gun fire for nearly a fortnight. Twice Anxa has thrown back big Vietnamese infantry assaults. The defenders are outnumbered about six to one.

French fighters and bombers are heavily hitting the besieging Communist-led rebels.

Thus far the Vietminh have failed in all attempts to smash into and capture either of the posts.

The mud and wood constructed forts — with blockhouses and machinegun pillboxes but no heavy artillery are in the heart of rice fields with limestone hills nearby. From these hills the Vietminh can pump over hundreds of mortar shells to pave the way for infantry charges.

Divorced Wife Tells Story of Shooting

CAMDEN (UP) — The divorced wife of M. L. (Bill) Turner, who is on trial here for murder, pointed the finger of guilt at her husband in a dramatic testimony yesterday.

Mrs. Bert Turner occupied the witness stand in Circuit Judge Gus Jones' court for more than two hours testifying that Turner, the scion of a wealthy South Arkansas oil family, knocked a man down without provocation and then fired two shots at him as he was struggling to his feet.

The man whom Turner is charged with killing was Lloyd Square 52-year-old North Little Rock railway executive. He was fatally wounded last April 14 outside an apartment house occupied by the former Mrs. Turner. He died two days after the shooting.

Turner has claimed self-defense. Mrs. Turner testified, on the second day of the trial, that she witnessed the shooting after she and Squire returned from a lunch engagement at a drive-in restaurant. She said she saw Turner draw his pistol and cock it. She also testified that Turner had threatened her and told her that if he ever caught her with another man he would "kill me and the man too."

Stiff cross examination by defense attorneys failed to shake Mrs. Turner's story of the shooting. Earlier, Camden Police Chief G. B. Cole testified that Mrs. Turner called him on the telephone and told him "Bill has just shot Lloyd. He's bleeding to death. Get a doctor quick."

Cole also testified that he had talked to Turner and Turner's brother, Buck, several hours before the shooting occurred and that Turner had expressed concern over his child who was in Mrs. Turner's custody.

The state rested its case after Mrs. Turner testified.

Ike May Have Averted Clash of Key Men

By CHARLES F. BARRET
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower appeared today to have averted a threatened election-year clash with some key congressmen in his own party over the tender topic of tariff walls.

He did so by putting off — until next year — his request for a three-year renewal of the Reciprocity Trade Act with power to lower tariffs an additional 5 per cent each year.

In a letter released late yesterday, Eisenhower said he still regarded this hotly controversial program as "indispensable" in the national interest. But he suggested that Congress only hold thorough hearings on it this year, and take it up for action early in 1955.

Meanwhile, he said, Congress could renew the act as it stands for one more year. The present law expires June 2.

Youth to Tell of Trip to Alaska

Marshall Rowe, Jr. of Washington will speak Sunday Evening to the Intermediate Training Union of the First Baptist Church.

His subject will be his trip to Alaska last summer. Marshall rode up the Alaskan International Highway to Palmer, Alaska visiting Anchorage and other cities.

He helped build a Baptist Church building under the direction of the Rev. Avery Richey, Marshall's uncle who lives at Palmer and who is employed by the Baptist Home Mission Board. Rowe was also employed on a government experimental agricultural project. Here he earned his passage back to the states.

His Alaskan experiences and first-hand information concerning roads, food, living conditions, and the people of Alaska will make him an interesting speaker for the Intermediate.

Marshall is the son of Mrs. Marshall Rowe, Sr., a much-loved teacher in the Washington School System, and the late Marshall Rowe, Sr.

He will be a Senior in the Hope High School next year. He is outstanding in both football and track as well as 4-H work and other farm club work. Since the death of his father he has fed the cattle and helped manage the Rowe farm. This training helped him in his work in Alaska last summer under the direction of the United States Agricultural Department.

France Wants Cease Fire During Talks

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP) — Deadlocked East-West talks on Indochina resumed in secret today and France sought to limit the initial negotiations to a cease-fire in Viet Nam.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault went to the ninth party session prepared to sidetrack for the moment the questions of Laos and Cambodia and concentrate on Viet Nam, where Communist-led forces are threatening the Red River Delta.

Before yesterday's recess the conference came to a dead stop over French demands for an immediate withdrawal of Red troops from Laos and Cambodia. France insists the problems of these two kingdoms be treated separately from the proposed cease-fire in Viet Nam.

French sources said the French delegation would seek agreement in principle on the proposed zones in Viet Nam in which opposing forces would be assembled under Bidault's armistice plan. If successful in this, the French hoped to turn over the question of defining the zones to a subcommittee of military experts. At the same time, the French hoped to assign to another subcommittee the question of getting Vietnamese forces out of Laos and Cambodia.

It is generally conceded that the conference reached a crucial stage with both the West and the Communists refusing to give ground on basic issues.

There were reports that British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would fly to London Sunday to report personally to Prime Minister Churchill. Eden conferred yesterday with both Russia's Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Red China's Foreign Minister Chou En-lai.

Shoulders Gets 3 Years, Dolan Is Given 2

By ED L. CAMPBELL

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two St. Louis policemen who captured little Bobby Greenlease's kidnappers were sentenced to prison today for lying to a federal grand jury about what happened to a record $600,000 ransom.

Former Lieutenant Louis Shoulders, a veteran of 27 years on the police force, was sentenced to three years. Rookie Patrolman Elmer Dolan was given two years. District Judge Albert A. Ridge, who sentenced the pair on charges of perjury, said he made the distinction because Shoulders was the dominating man, who had the direction and supervision over Dolan in the case.

Defense attorney Mark Hennelly pleaded unsuccessfully for the 26-year-old Dolan, son of a policeman and a police matron, to be placed on probation.

Shoulders' attorney, Henry Morris, pleaded for leniency by reviewing the former officer's long and honorable record of law enforcement.

Shoulders and Dolan have been at liberty under bonds of $10,000 and $7,500 respectively, since their convictions in separate trials earlier this spring.

The two were heroes when they arrested Bobby's kidnappers, Carl Austin Hall, at a St. Louis hotel last Oct. 8, shortly after he and his accomplice, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, had collected the $600,000 ransom from the child's multimillionaire father, Robert C. Greenlease of Kansas City.

McCarthy Blasts Secrecy But Will Attend Hearings

Snag Hit by U. S. in Plan for Asia Pact
By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may run into difficulty in setting up a collective anti-Communist defense for Southeast Asia when Britain refuses to go along.

A sign of possible complication came from New Zealand's Foreign Minister T. Clifton Webb yesterday after an hour-long conference with Secretary of State Dulles and New Zealand's ambassador here, Leslie Knox Munro.

"I can't conceive of a satisfactory alliance being made that didn't include Britain," Webb said, adding:

"We can't see Britain not wanting to be in. You are asking me to speculate on a situation which we don't believe will arise."

Nothing of great importance, certainly nothing of a formal nature, is likely to happen on the coalition project until after the Australian elections May 28. At that time U. S. officials would like to move quickly, and extensive understandings may by then have been reached by American and French officials now holding preliminary talks at Paris.

The British government has decided it will not make commitments of any kind on the Southeast Asia-Indochina situation until after negotiations at Geneva conclusively show whether there is to be an end to the fighting. This country is unwilling to wait that long.

The U. S. government is not necessarily aiming at the start for a formal alliance, but rather a practical kind of coalition which could be created more quickly in the precise meaning of the words, American officials say. Webb that a "satisfactory alliance" without British participation would be very difficult to bring about in view of Britain's world position and special interests in Southeast Asia.

McClellan Says Hearings Won't Stop
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) says Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) can't stop the McCarthy-Army hearings by refusing to appear.

McClellan is one of three Democrats sitting on the Senate subcommittee which is digging into the Army-McCarthy row.

The Arkansas senator, here on a visit, said his doubts that the hearing would continue were dispelled by statements from President Eisenhower and Army Secretary Stevens Wednesday.

NEW YORK STOCKS
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was active today at higher prices, but in the early afternoon the rise lost headway.

Leaders displayed changes either way that usually were in the smaller fractions, but some pressed their advantage to between 1 and 3 points.

Among the better acting major divisions were the railroads, motors, coppers, stocks with uranium interests, aircrafts, electronics issues, chemicals, building materials, and utilities.

The steels were mixed in the face of a new broad program of union demands for higher wages, shorter hours and greater benefits for steelworkers.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS
CHICAGO (AP) — Most cereals and soybeans contracts forged steadily higher on the Board of Trade today in a fairly active movement.

July oats and soybeans deliveries were exceptions.

Brokers looked again at an overnight government announcement of selling surplus feed grains overseas at cut-rate prices. After slipping a little at the start, the market advanced in general relief at the prospects of reducing burdensome supplies in government bins.

Wheat closed 1/4-1/2 cents higher, July $1.96-1.98 1/2; corn was 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher, July $1.53 1/2; oats were lower to higher.

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures were irregular today. Most deliveries declined as persistent liquidation in nearby July unsettled the rest of the market. Losses extended to 65 cents a bale before the market recovered and a replacement commission house demand.

Late afternoon prices were 55 cents a bale lower to 30 cents higher than the previous close. July 34.21, Oct. 34.17 and Dec 34.20.

Efficient Farmers
Denmark probably has the most highly organized agricultural industry in the world. The agricultural producers have achieved a high standard of efficiency through cooperative enterprises in production quality of production and distribution.

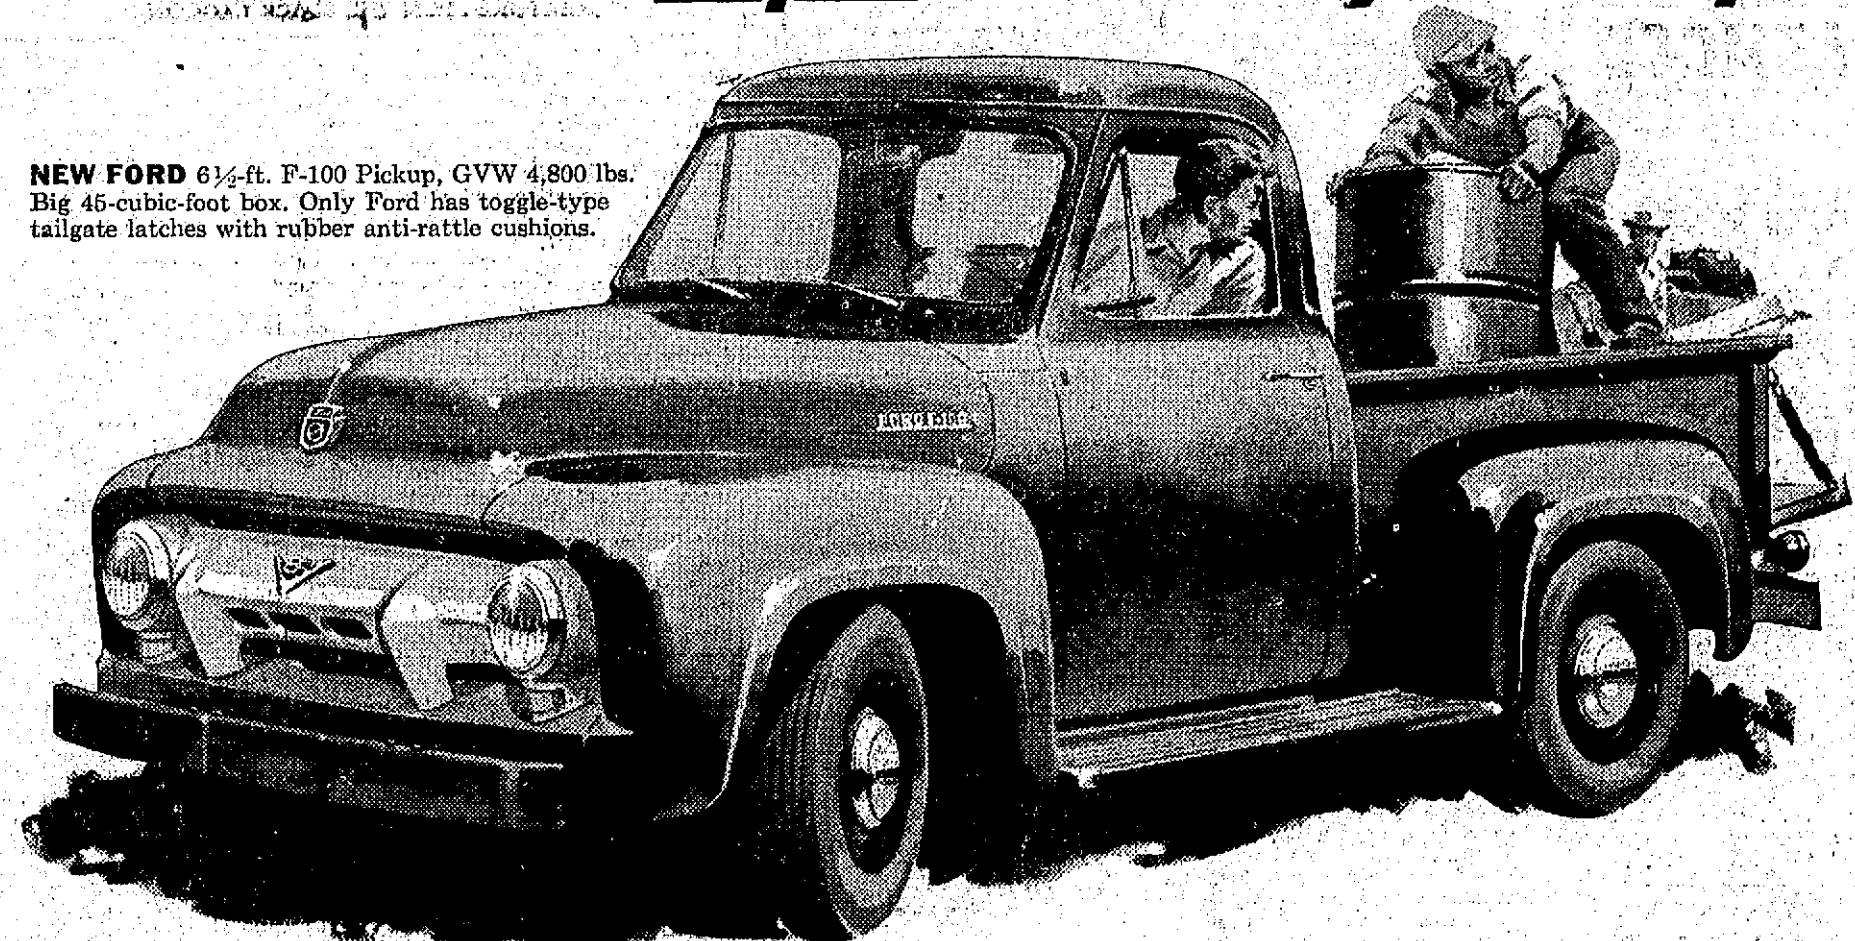

Accidental President
John Quincy Adams was nicknamed the "Accidental President" because he received 13 of 24 electoral votes cast and many felt this majority of one was an accident.

Donna Reed Acts Bad to Be Good

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Donna Reed is living proof of the adage that as an actress you've got to be bad to be good.

It is now history that Miss Reed walked off with an Oscar for playing a lady in "From Here to Eternity." This was after playing nice girls for more Hollywood years (13) than she would like to recall.

I paid a lunch call on Donna to find out what the Oscar has done for her and to her. She is back at her home lot, MGM, where she apprenticed eight years in Andy Hardy, "Thin Man," Dr. Gillespie and other films before reaching stardom. She came back to the studio as a free-lancer, appearing with Liz Taylor, Van Johnson and Walter Pidgeon in "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

"The role I play is not really a good girl," she remarked, "but she turns out to be all right in the end. No, it's nothing like 'From Here to Eternity.' That kind of a part comes along only once in a actor's lifetime — if he's lucky."

I asked how the Oscar has changed her professional life. She replied that more scripts are being submitted to her, and the roles are better. But she hasn't noticed any increase in films that would cast her as a bad woman.

"I guess people still can't get used to my playing such a role," she sighed.

Donna admitted that she fell into the "Eternity" role somewhat by chance. When she first became acquainted with the part, she played her as a brunette in a test with Aldo Ray, who was trying out for the role of Montgomery Clift eventually.

Then she did another test with Ray, this time as a blonde. Now she began to get enthused and made a pitch for the role with Columbia boss Harry Cohn.

"Absolutely not," he replied. "We've signed Deborah Kerr for the other girl's part. That's one lady switching her type. We can't have another."

But a day later she was assigned to do another test, again as a brunette. She convinced the brass and won the role.

The picture did wonders for her career — "It was good for everybody connected with it." Oddly enough, she left her Columbia contract shortly before she won the Oscar.

She is now busy on the franchise circuit. She was also set to play Jose Ferrer's wife in the Sigmund Romberg biography, but had to cancel when Liz Taylor's illness stalled the "Paris" pic. She said she'll never again sign a term contract at a studio, although she has had handsome offers. After 13 years at studios, she cherished her independence. She wants to devote more time to her family.

There are about 250,000 species of fishes.

DOROTHY DIX

Tyranny Of Tears

Dear Miss Dix: My fiancée is one of three daughters of a widowed mother with a martyr complex. The other two girls are married, and were smart enough to move quite a distance away, leaving Laura to care for her mother. Now, the mother is a woman in her 40s, healthy, fairly attractive, and with a small income from property left by her husband. She has sisters and brothers, other relatives and friends. Yet won't let Laura out of her sight without throwing a tantrum.

These spells of hers are nothing new; she ruled her husband through them. Whenever he wanted to do or buy something on his own, there was a fit of crying with, "You don't love me," "I might as well go away," etc.

Perhaps my complaints sound childish, but it seems a shame to see a woman, who is perfectly capable of doing something useful in the world, acting like a child. Naturally, the subject of Laura's marriage brings on a de luxe attack of weeping. I dearly love my fiancée, but I'm not looking forward to spending much of our time in a perpetual vale of tears.

Tough Problem Answer: You are facing one of the toughest problems that can beset a marriage, and one which, if not permanently solved now, will forever rule your home. The combination of a mother determined to get what she wants by any means at hand, and a compliant daughter who will make any sacrifice for the sake of peace, is well nigh unbeatable. The fact that your future mother-in-law's tactics have been successfully employed with everyone in the family for several years foretells for her any sympathy that might be her due in the role of a normal, lonely mother.

There is one cogent fact which, if squarely faced, might make your fiancée see reason. This is that absolutely nothing that has ever been done, or will ever be done for her mother, will make the older woman happy or satisfied. So, though Laura gives her mother object devotion and slavish care, nothing will ever be enough. Then, what is the good of continual striving? Absolutely none. The girl's salvation lies in getting married and moving away — as did her sisters — to a safe point of vantage. Perhaps a miracle will then make Mom realize how foolish she's been and how much happier she'll be making a life of her own, instead of relying on those around her to supply every emotional need. Were she too old or too ill for activity, drastic action would be difficult, if not impossible. Under existing circumstances, however, it's the only possible thing to do. In the long run it will turn out to be the kindest step, too, since it will undoubtedly give mother a push toward independence which she needs sorely.

Dear Miss Dix: Many years ago I met a girl who was very beautiful and very intelligent. She was a widow and had a young son.

shortly after, but he did not tell his child that his wife was not her real mother. He did not permit our granddaughter to visit us and, though we called on them occasionally for the sake of maintaining our acquaintance with the child, we were aware of the fact that we were supposed to be quite distant with the girl. However, we haven't visited them in some time now, and only see our grandchild when we meet her on the street, as family friends. She is now 17 and we believe it's about time she knew something about her own mother.

Grandfather Answer: It is always a mistake to bring a child up in ignorance of her true parentage; the father has been very foolish in this regard. Eventually someone is going to tell the girl that her own mother is dead and she will resent her father attempt at secrecy. In his long run, he's hurting no one as much as himself. There is nothing at all you can do but wait until such time as the truth comes out. It's too bad that you and the girl have been deprived of the precious grandchild grandparents relationship that could have been enjoyed all these years, but perhaps the future will make up for it.

Russell Is Against Vote Age Reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) today denounced as an invasion of states' rights President Eisenhower's proposal to lower the voting age from 21 years to 18. Russell, unofficial spokesman for a bloc of Southern Democrats in the Senate, spoke out in an interview in advance of the start of Senate debate today on a proposed constitutional amendment to give the vote to 18-year-olds.

"It is the most inexcusable infringement on the rights of the states that I can think of," Russell said.

His state, Georgia, is the only one which now permits 18-year-olds to vote. He said "it has worked well" there, but he added that the voting age is a matter for individual states to determine under the Constitution and should remain so.

He said the constitutional amendment proposal "is a direct reflection on almost every governor and state legislature" because it asserts they are not capable of fixing the regulations and qualifications for their own voters.

Hearings Are Off and Then They Are On

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even Thursday's hearings would get eye-strain trying to watch the rabbit to see what it was in the Senate investigation of the Army-McCarthy fight.

The hearings, which started April 22, seemed all but dead last Monday after they were shut down for a week. They're supposed to start up again next Monday. That's no sure bet.

The inquiry began as an attempt to find out who was lying — Secretary of the Army Stevens and his aides — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and his aides — in their bushel basket of charges and countercharges.

But no McCarthy says that from his viewpoint "the all-important thing is the motive — who started this, who is responsible for the Army charges."

After some confusion on who did start it, Stevens yesterday said he was responsible. He'll probably have to repeat that under oath. If and when he does, McCarthy may say he's still not convinced.

If he insists finding the motive takes precedence over finding the truth or falsity of the charges, he may use it as a reason for walking out without testifying.

No one yet has explained how the Senate subcommittee making the investigation could force McCarthy to testify or even attend the inquiry if he didn't want to. He couldn't be arrested and brought in.

McCarthy is in Washington on Senate business. And under the Constitution no senator can be arrested while serving as a senator except for treason, a felony or a breach of the peace. However, he has never said he wouldn't testify, and he has taken the stand once briefly already.

Yet after all this time only two of the main witnesses — Stevens and the Army Counselor John G. Adams — have been called on for full testimony and neither of them have finished yet.

Four main witnesses remain to be called: McCarthy; his subcommittee's chief counsel, Roy M. Cohn; his chief of staff, Francis P. Carr; and H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defense.

Before they ever finish, if the hearing lasts that long, squads of other witnesses undreamed of now may be pulled into the case. Nevertheless, Sen. Mundt (R-SD), acting subcommittee chairman who said the hearings will begin again Monday, predicted they'd wind up in about 10 days after that.

That may turn out to be as dreamy as the predictions made before the hearings started the first time. That they'd be over in 10 days or two weeks.

This investigation has taken strange twists and turns, including the many hours lost by the investigating senators in their search for a way to save time. The strangest came when President Eisenhower got into the picture. He refused — on the constitutional grounds that the Senate had no right to nose into private conversations among his advisers — to let the Senate subcommittee question some of those advisers.

Adams said he had talked with them about alleged improper pressures from McCarthy's office, and was advised to list them in writing. The chronology later grew into the Army charges now before the senators.

McCarthy cried, in effect: "Who really pulled the strings? Did Stev-

Lion Brings in Louisiana Well

EL DORADO (AP) — T. M. Martin, president of Lion Oil Co., today announced the completion of the Vinton No. 1 oil well in Section 30-Township 21N-Range 13W, Bossier Parish, La.

This is a confirmation well of the shallow pool recently discovered by the company in the Doles No. 1, completed from 1,920 feet to 1,940 feet.

Spanish conquistadors under Hernando Cortes explored most of Mexico and what is now the U. S. Southwest nearly a century before the Pilgrims landed in New England.

ens and Adams Hensel make the charges against me and my staff on their own or were they pushed into it? Whom am I fighting here?"

The other senators said that was a good question. They wanted to find out, too, and suspended the hearings last Monday to see if Eisenhower could be persuaded to let them question his advisers.

He still said no yesterday, and Stevens jumped in to say the Army alone was responsible for the charges. It was after hearing this that McCarthy perhaps not convinced, said the motive behind the charges was the main point.

CLEAN CLOWNING—This water skier really believes in clowning as he skims barefooted atop the water near Cypress Gardens, Fla. He took his broom along to make sure the water was clean.

STREET ROD

Copyright 1953 by Henry Gregor Felsen. Printed by arrangement with the publishers, Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service.

By HENRY GREGOR FELSEN

The Story: After using his savings to buy an old car, against the wishes of his parents, Ricky Madson, 16, is a little sour on his bargain. Pride won't let him admit this to his parents, not even after he finds that there are many expenses beyond the original cost of a hot rod.

"I don't suppose I have to tell you that if I find out you're misusing the car, I'll insist you give it up," Ricky's father said.

"Gosh," Ricky said, "I couldn't be reckless in this old car if I wanted to. I bet it wouldn't go over 40 if you had it wide open. But I'll be careful. With everything it's going to cost me, I'd be a fool to risk getting in a wreck!"

Mr. Madson smiled slightly at the self-righteous tone that had crept into Ricky's voice. "I trust your judgment, Ricky," he said.

"But from the looks of your car, I wouldn't do much driving until I had better tires on it and fixed it up a little."

When his father left, Ricky went to the far side of his car and sat down by the front wheel.

Stuck. His father knew it, the guys knew it, and he knew it. Trying to act like a big shot, he'd really shown himself up for a dope. No wonder they were laughing at him, the way he had let Merle cheat him. No wonder Sharon had looked at him in disgust. He'd proved that he was a worse kid than she thought.

Payments... insurance... license... parts... He was stuck for a couple of hundred bucks, and he'd have to take that grocery job now and what did he have to show for it? A junker nobody wanted.

But he'd show them all! He'd prove he hadn't been cheated. He'd rebuild his car until he had a rod that could match wheels with anybody. It could be done—maybe.

Then they wouldn't sneer at him. Not after he showed them what he could do. That was the ticket all right. Work quietly, and make a real bomb out of the coupe. And then, some day when they were all giving him a rough time, invite Link to drag against him. Ricky grinned, thinking about his coupe leaving Link behind.

There they were, at the head of the drive. Link, Chub, Sherm and Jerry, sitting in their cars.

Ricky scrambled to his feet. "It's all right, boys," he yelled.

Faith will overcome the most miserable circumstances

The Years Ahead!

Up to now they've been reading about it. They have had a teacher to fall back on, but now they're in it. It's THEIR LITTLE RED WAGON FROM HERE ON. They must now make decisions.

Their flour bin and their smokehouse will be only as full as they fill it. This is COMMENCEMENT DAY. They learned in church that God promised bread only by the sweat of the brow. Unless they have learned to take prosperity without pride, and adversity without anguish, they are still unprepared.

We pray they are ready for THE YEARS AHEAD.
